Montana's Governor Nutter Receives Tribute in Helena

HELENA (AP)—The Treasure State he loved paid its last, formal religious tribute Monday to Donald Grant Nutter, governor of Montana.

His body rested in a flag-draped casket below the rostrum of the Montana House of Representatives where just over one year ago Nutter had prayed for the strength "to do those things good for Montana."

Centerpiece of a group of 15 floral sprays and wreaths was a striking cross of white flowers from former President and Mrs. Eisenhower with whom the governor had visited in California earlier this month.

The white cross was raised in front of famed cowboy-artist Charles M. Russell's largest painting—Lewis and Clark meeting the Indians at Ross' Hole in western Montana Sept. 5, 1805.

The caskets flanking that of the 46-year-old Republican governor were the bodies of two of his closest aides and personal friends killed with him and three crew members last Thursday.

The aides killed with the governor were his executive secretary, Dennis B. Gordon, 38, and State Agriculture Commissioner Edward C. Wren, 43.

At the close of the rites, the body of Gov. Nutter was moved under Highway Patrol escort 465 miles to his hometown of Sidney. There, he will lie in state this morning and be accorded Congregational funeral services at 3 p.m. This will be in the eastern Montana county seat's largest auditorium, the Sidney High School gymnasium where Nutter was an outstanding athlete.

Probe of Tragic Crash Continues

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One wing of the plane carrying Montana Gov. Donald G. Nutter and five companions fell to earth a mile from the spot where the twin-engined craft crashed last Thursday, killing all aboard.

The wing, apparently torn from the C47 Air National Guard plane on its flight north from Helena, gave support to beliefs that tremendous air turbulence may have slammed into the craft over mountain peaks and canyons near Wolf Creek.

Air Force crash and safety investigators confirmed the finding of the wing, but said it probably would be three weeks before they can pinpoint the cause of the shattering crash.

Parts of the wreckage have been trucked to Great Falls, where some of the charred remains will be reassembled for detailed study.

Meanwhile, Air Force and National Guard inspection teams continue to probe the area around the crash for additional parts of the plane.

Investigators are using ultraviolet lights to check out some of the crushed instruments that have been recovered, although most of the plane's panel equipment was completely destroyed.

Weather Maintains Key to Orbit Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Project Mercury officials cast an anxious but optimistic eye on the weather yesterday as plans progressed to send astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. into orbit around the earth on Thursday.

Heavy seas, with waves running 7 to 13 feet high, were reported in the Atlantic Ocean off Bermuda, a key recovery area for Glenn and his space capsule.

One full orbit would land Glenn 500 miles east of Bermuda; two would put him 500 miles south of Bermuda and the complete three-orbit mission would leave him about 800 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral, where at the moment calm seas prevail.

Meanwhile, technicians and scientists continued to get the Atlas booster and its complex spacecraft, the Friendship 7, in go-condition for blastoff. All systems were reportedly checking out well, and so far no mechanical hitches had developed.

Kreisler, Violin Virtuoso Succumbs

NEW YORK (AP)—Fritz Kreisler, one of the great violin virtuosos of the last half century, died yesterday. He was 86.

Death came to him in the Harkness Pavilion of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center where he had been a patient for 16 days. His agent said a heart attack, along with old age, brought the end.

Student Union Sponsors Kaimin Progress Exhibit

Kaimins, showing the transition of the paper from a literary periodical to the present daily newspaper, are currently displayed in the cases outside the Bookstore, according to Jean Olson, chairman of the Arts and Crafts Committee.

The exhibit will run through the middle of February, Miss Olson reported. The oldest edition on display is from 1902, a few years after publication began.

The exhibition is sponsored by the Student Union Arts and Crafts Committee.

Flying Club To Instruct

The Hellgate Flying Club is sponsoring, for the first time, a ground school designed to teach the fundamentals necessary to pass Federal Aviation Agency examinations.

A preliminary meeting has been scheduled for tonight in Conference Room 1 of the Lodge.

Gail Keilman, flight instructor from the Missoula Aerial Service, said the course will cost each applicant $10. This price does not include the cost of books, computer and plotter.

Keilman said the program is a part of the Hellgate Flying Club's plan to reduce rates for flying. He said the club has a plane which members can rent at a reduced rate from those offered by most commercial clubs.

Chess Tourney Slated for Feb. 10

Already more than a dozen enthusiasts have registered for the Student Union committee-sponsored chess tournament scheduled for Feb. 10, according to Dave Riana, program director.

Riana said those wishing to participate have until 4 p.m. today to sign up for the tourney. Entries may be turned in at the Lodge desk. He said prizes will be awarded to the first and second place finishers.

Prof. Lapiken will act as advisor to the committee on details regarding the organization and management of the tourney.

Sack Back?

PARIS (AP)—Fashion designer Yves Saint Laurent raised the curtains on his new house yesterday and seemed to win the hearts and heads of buyers with a new version of the sack look.

The designer gave the sack look a tunic effect with straight skirts showing beneath an overblouse.

The skirts were never longer than just below the knee.

Faculty Guests of AFROTC

The first AFROTC Cadet Luncheon for winter quarter was held yesterday in the Territory Rooms of the Lodge. The purpose of the luncheon is to acquaint various members of the faculty and community with the AFROTC program, and to give advanced cadets briefing experience, according to Capt. Merle Emmert, Air Force public information officer.

Guests included Mr. Helbing, business administration; Mr. Lonner, assistant dean of students; Mr. Van De Wetering, history; Mr. Brisse, speech; Mr. Lawry, philosophy; Mr. Hower, geology; Mrs. Powers, journalism; Mrs. Orlich, home economics; Miss Dundas,

Brantley, Elrod Face Lifting In Last Stage of Completion

The final touches to the redecorating of Brantley and Elrod Halls should be completed in the next few weeks, according to Tom Swearington, construction supervisor at MSU. The revamping, which was begun in August at a cost of $64,160, included the construction of new entrances, refinishing and tiling of hardwood floors and the redecorating of the reception rooms.

The entrances which were ready for use in December, will become the main entrances used by students and will be the most available exit to the street, Swearington said.

Further improvements include a new kitchen in Brantley, newly painted walls and refinishing of the floors.

Plans also include new student mailboxes which can be opened by individual room keys. They are expected to arrive in the next few weeks, Swearington stated.

The two buildings were constructed in 1921 and are still in surprisingly good shape, Swearington said. With good care and proper treatment, they may be expected to remain functional for an additional 40 years, he added.

MSU Programs Begin Tonight

A weekly series of television programs originating from MSU television studios will premiere tonight at 8 on the cable system, channel 3.

The series of six programs will be directed by students in Advanced Television Problems class and narrated by George Hummel.

The first program, directed by Ray Maidment, senior radio-TV major, will feature the University String Trio. The trio will perform the first and third movements of Schubert's "Trio in E Flat, Opus 100."

Future programs in the series include the MSU String Quartet, the Chamber Band, the MSU Symphonette, the Concert Band, and the Missoula Civic Symphony.

Chilean Paintings Shown in Lodge

An exhibition of 54 paintings by Chilean school children will be on display in the Lodge through February, according to Dave Rianda, program director.

The exhibit, "Children's Paintings from Chile," was selected by Mrs. Walter Howe, wife of the U.S. ambassador to Chile, while she was there, and is being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition.

Most of the paintings were done by children between the ages of 11 and 14, although there is one contribution from a 7-year-old. The scenes are mainly of horse races, folk dances, parades and national holidays, bullfights, rodeos and roundups and street festivities. Media ranging from watercolors through finger paint were employed.

MSU Soprano Places Fourth In Met Auditions

Judy Fisher, MSU soprano, received a $75 scholarship from the Seattle Opera Guild for placing fourth in the Metropolitan Opera regional auditions Sunday. She competed against 16 other singers at the Health Science Building auditorium, University of Washington, Seattle.

An invited audience of 100 people heard the auditions, according to Miss Fisher. Six finalists were chosen to sing from the 17 auditioned. From these the top five were chosen.

Miss Fisher, who at 20 is five years younger than any of the other contestants, is a junior majoring in music education from Blackfoot, Idaho. She sang the same two arias by Puccini that she had presented at the district competition in Spokane two weeks ago. Her accompanist was Roberta Tarbox, sophomore from Missoula.

The judge commented, according to Miss Fisher, that she was too young to be singing these arias.

A member of Jubileers, the Opera Workshop and the University Choir, Miss Fisher sang the lead of the mother in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" in December, 1960. The year before she soloed with the Choir in Benjamin Britton's "Ceremony of Carols." She also soloed with the choir in the Spring tour and in Vivaldi's "Gloria" at Christmas. She is a voice student of Prof. John Lester.

The winner of the regional competition, Waldie Anderson, 31, Ellensburg, Wash., is a tenor who had been named a winner in the Spokane district, the one in which Miss Fisher also placed.

Unknown Party Cuts Phone Lines

Last Sunday between one and two a.m., persons unknown put 13 extension telephones in Craig and Duniway Halls out of order by cutting the wires that connected the telephones to the wall plugs, according to James A. Brown, director of residence halls.

"Six hundred and forty men were left without telephone service in the dormitories as a result of the crime," Mr. Brown said.

He said in addition to the extension telephones, three pay telephones also were disconnected.

Mr. Brown stated an investigation of the vandalism is under way.

"The telephones would be back in service by the end of this week or the beginning of next week," he added.

UNIVERSITY POLITICAL THOUGHT

By JAMES M. KELLY

Up from Liberalism. Liberalism has grown middle-aged and prosaic. Its most advanced exponents present concepts found to be empirical dynamic and tentative. It offers nothing for an idealistic youth who is looking for definite answers in an indefinite world, it calls forth no colporteurs, it tenders no millennium via conquest. Let us turn to Conservatism. Let us turn to God, to the wisdom of our ancestors to the belief in property and natural rights—all basic tenets of the philosophies of Russell Kirk, William F. Buckley and Barry Goldwater.

The wisdom of our ancestors and the veneration of tradition are things all good conservatives delight in expounding on, and, in this connection, it is worth reading Russell Kirk's Prospects for Conservatives. Prof. Kirk has opened many a book, and it is only lamentable that his action is invariably preceded by the closing of his mind. (Perhaps he took to heart Hume's remark that carelessness and inattention alone can afford us the answer.) The professor's book is worth reading because when talk turns to tradition and the wisdom of our ancestors, some annoying persons display a rather depraved memory. Prof. Kirk relieves us to that effect, however, by telling us who among our ancestors was wise and who was not.

In turning to the men the professor deigns unwise, we are not much enlightened by him as to why they are unwise, so let's choose two of the most scorned, Thomas Paine and John Stuart Mill, and examine them. Thomas Paine was, if not the first, one of the first to advocate complete freedom from England for the most part, unanswerable pamphlets and essays. Notable among them are Common Sense, The Crisis, The Rights of Man, and The Age Reason. Prof. Kirk seems most distressed that Paine was active in three democratic revolutions, and takes an odd delight in muttering about the fate of radicals while telling us Paine was nearly guillotined by the French. We are not told, of course, that Paine was nearly guillotined because he opposed the radicals, nor that the American Federalist, Morris, was instrumental in his imprisonment. Neither are we told that Paine originally went to France to escape being lynched by England's conservative Tories. John Stuart Mill is exemplified in his essays The Subjection of Women, and The Limits of Governmental Interference. In the first he argues for the emancipation of women, and in the second for a minimum of state interference. Possibly he is objected to because he once dismissed the first-cause argument for the existence of God with the question: "Who caused God?"

This is not the day for dogma. This is not the time to cling uncritically to the past with a hope and prayer. And this is not the hour to begin advocating unequal rights (i.e., one man has the right to be born materially better off than another.)

In seven generations, the American nation has made the most startling advance in modern history. In the next seven generations, its advance should be even more startling, but not, I doubt, while bearing the cross of Conservatism.

REGULATION UNNECESSARY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert W. Sarnoff, said regulation of networks is unnecessary and unwise.

Comments on Gov. Nutter

Montana Standard-Post, Butte

Gov. Nutter, in the finest traditions of the West, lived his vigorous life standing up straight and insisting on being counted. In his beliefs and principles he was profoundly sincere. He was steadfast in his aims, many of them lofty enough to be monuments to him. He would not avoid a fight to defend a principle.

The governor long was a strong force in Republican politics. He was unwavering in his loyalty. His death is a great loss to his party, but his untimely end is as deeply mourned by many of the other party who admired him for sterling qualities.

The Havre Daily News

Before him were great challenges which he was looking forward to meeting without fear. He was a man with a great capacity for work and a firm belief that most anything could be accomplished if the people set their hearts and minds to the task.

With what appeared as a brilliant future as an administrator before him it seems doubly crushing that he should suddenly be taken from the work he began as our governor a little over a year ago.

Governor Nutter's objectives will long be remembered with his achievements. They may serve as an inspiration to his successor and to all of the people of Montana. Don Nutter would want us to remember what his goals were and for us to try to reach them, too.

The Independent-Record, Helena

Governor Nutter reached the highest office in the state through hard work, determination and a certainty of his goal.

Young, vigorous, forward-looking, he had just begun a career which could have led far in Montana's political affairs. In Montana government he knew where he was going.

He saw the need for the governor to be more than a mere titleholder and he advocated changes in the law which would give the office some of the responsibility which the public assumes should go with it.

He lived long enough to define his problems and to state his aims.

He died as he would have wished, on duty, serving the State of Montana, flying as he loved to fly, surrounded by those who wished him well.

Great Falls Tribune

In his official capacity, Governor Nutter was also untiring in his efforts to promote a favorable climate for the growth of business and industry in Montana.

His influence in public affairs and his efforts for statewide development will leave a lasting impact on the Montana scene.

In the death of Governor Nutter Montana has lost the services of a deeply dedicated and forceful chief executive. He moved with determination in exercising the responsibilities of his office to establish sound fiscal operation in state government. He championed and piloted a broad program for strict budgetary accounting, for which he sought enactment in the 1961 legislative session.

Great Falls Leader

Someone once said that it is not titles that reflect honor on men, but men on their titles. This applies to no man in any station in life to a greater degree than to Don Nutter. And it may be said with certainty that he reflected the greatest honor upon his title as governor by the depth and honesty of his convictions and his willingness to stand for them and to assume whatever responsibility or consequence they might entail.

He had his detractors, as all men do who strive for accomplishment, but whether or not one agreed with his efforts and methods, few could honestly question his intentions.

Donald Nutter was a self-made Montanan who loved his country, his state and its people and was willing to work for them far beyond any conceivable personal gain. Than for this to be true, a man could have hardly gained a greater place in the hearts of his constituents.

The Livingstone Enterprise

No one questioned Gov. Nutter's sincerity or honesty, or his devotion to his duties as governor of Montana. He was supremely confident that his program was the right program for Montana.

In recent months Gov. Nutter had gained wide prominence as an aggressive spokesman for the conservatives and the nation. His untiring efforts and his counsel will be sorely missed by his friends, his party and his state.

'Tips to Face Rams, Pokes

Montana's on the road this week meeting second-place Colorado State on Friday in Ft. Collins then flying toward home to battle with sixth-place Wyoming on Saturday in Laramie.

Montana is tied with Wyoming in the Skyline with a 1-4 record. Colorado is in second with a 5-1 record. Utah is atop the league with a 5-0 mark.

CSU put down Wyoming 56 to 50 but dropped a close 58 to 57 decision to the Air Force Falcons Saturday night at the Academy. The Cowboys did not play Saturday.

The Grizzlies will be faced with the task of stopping Colorado State's hot-shooting center Billy Green. Green is second in Skyline scoring with an average of 22 points per game.

Last season Green was named to the All-Skyline as a sophomore and is making a strong bid for some All-America recognition this season. He averaged 17.7 points per game last season.

The Rams were hurt by the loss of all-conference forward Manny Lawrence during the Christmas vacation because his grade average did not meet Colorado State University's requirements. But the CSU squad is still making a strong bid for a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

The conference-leading Utah Redskins have been barred by the NCAA from post-season playoffs.

this year. Both CSU and third-place Utah State (4-1) are scrambling for the honor of representing the Skyline in the NCAA tourney.

Last season the Grizzlies upset CSU's appiecart with a 70 to 60 victory over the Rams in Missoula. The Rams returned the favor in Ft. Collins by dropping the Grizzlies 67 to 49, but the damage had been done as the Rams finished in a first-place tie with Utah's running Redskins for the Skyline title. Utah won a post-season playoff, 55 to 51, and gained the right to enter the NCAA tourney.

Saturday night the Grizzlies will enter the Wyoming contest a slight favorite, but they are not expecting an easy show against the Cowboys. Wyoming has a 7-9 record in all games but a 5-2 record on the home court. Only Southern California and New Mexico have been able to outscore the Cowboys at Laramie.

The Cowboy attack has been paced by guard Curt Jimerson and 6-8 center Al Eastland. Jimerson is averaging 17.1 points per game this season and Eastland is averaging 14.5. Last week, Jimerson was the Skyline's leader in free-throw percentage with an .867 mark from the charity stripe.

Montana defeated the Cowboys twice last season with a 72 to 61 victory in Missoula and a season-ending 64 to 55 victory at Laramie.

Montana's offensive attack is probably the most evenly balanced in the Skyline with all five starters averaging in the double figures.

Dan Sullivan is the leading scorer on the Montana squad with an average of 13.6 points per game, but the senior forward is only a shade in front of sophomore Tim Aldrich with a 13.5 average. Steve Lowry is averaging 12.7 points per game, Bob O'Billovich is averaging 11.3, and Ray Lucien follows with a 10.5 average.

Colorado State probably will start Green at center, Jim Orlander and Gary Anderson at guards, and Jack Omdahl and Bill Ellis at forwards against the Grizzlies.

Wyoming's starters will probably be Eastland at center, Jimerson and Bob Hanson at guards, and Ken Rochlitz and Fred Gish at forwards.

Montana's starters in the two contests will likely be Lowry at center, Sullivan and Aldrich at forwards, and O'Billovich and Lucien at the guard positions.

U STUDENT KILLED

Word was received yesterday that Michael Manix, former University student, was killed in Rome, Italy, in an auto accident.

Manix, junior art major, had left the University for a quarter to tour Europe.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Manix, formerly of Missoula and now of Moses Lake, Wash.

Aldrich Pressing

Sullivan Leads 'Tip Attack By Sinking 13.6 Per Game

Dangerous Dan Sullivan, senior forward, continues to lead the Montana Grizzly scoring machine with an average of 13.6 points per game, but sophomore Timmy Aldrich is still close behind with a 13.5 average.

Sullivan has scored 204 points in 15 games while Aldrich has scored 203. Both scored 13 points against Montana State Saturday night.

All five starters on the Montana team have scoring averages in the double figures. Steve Lowry is third with 185 points for a 12.3 average, Bob O'Billovich is fourth with 169 points for an 11.3 average, and Ray Lucien is fifth with 157 points and an average, of 10.5 points per game.

As a team, the Grizzlies have scored 980 points in 15 games for an average of 65.3 points per game. Montana's opponents have scored 157 points and an average of 10.5 points per game.

Lowry is the team's leading rebounder with 187. Sullivan is second in the rebounding department with 162. Lowry is averaging 12.5 rebounds per game and Sullivan 10.8.

Lowry also has the dubious honor of leading the Grizzlies in personal fouls. The tall center has been guilty of 67 fouls this season. Lowry's closest competitors in the personal-foul statistics are Sullivan with 37 and O'Billovich with 36.

The Grizzlies have been more conservative at sending opponents to the charity stripe having committed 243 personals to the opposition's 264.

Economics Professor Defends Peace Corps at Forum Meet

Robert F. Wallace, chairman and professor of the economics department, defended the Peace Corps at Montana Forum Friday.

Noting that his speech was based on very general observations, Mr. Wallace remarked that the Peace Corps "has been accepted with considerably less than full enthusiasm."

Basically, the Corps' goals are based upon hard political goals, he said. "This is the last thing we ought to admit, however," he added.

It was his premise that the Peace Corps is an educational and educating program. Comparing it with the missionary movements of many churches, Mr. Wallace asserted that the Corps' personnel are vastly better prepared and trained than most missionaries. This is because the effort is on improving economics of various countries through education without trying to change native religions, as missionaries do, he said.

There must be a change in outlook and culture, according to Mr.

Wallace, before economic changes can begin in these countries.

"If they accept the basic values of western society," he noted, "then we have gone a long way."

"Far from being a fuzzy-headed sort of thing, it (the Peace Corps) may be a do-gooder thing," he continued.

Mr. Wallace cited popular problems which the Corps might aid through its educating function. These included the difficulty arising from lack of communication because many languages are spoken in one country, the frail administrative structures in some countries, the quarrels over religion stemming from the numbers of sects and the lack of national unity in many places.

Mr. Wallace came to MSU last fall from Washington State University where he also was a professor of economics. He received his B.A. from the University of Kansas and his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota.

Committees Meet To Make Plans

The Activities Board and the Special Events Committee have already shifted into high gear to formulate plans for the scheduled Feb. 24 appearance of the Lime-liters, according to Eric Myhre, Activities Board chairman.

Myhre announced a meeting of the two collaborating bodies for this evening at 7:30 in the Silver Bow Room of the Lodge to further consolidate plans. He stated that tickets go on sale Feb. 12.

Committee appointments, according to Myhre, are:

Publicity: Bill Gregory, Mary Louise Pengelly, Carol Rohel, Tinsley Palmer, Mary Lou Salvesson, Mary Rasmussen, Jody Ann Zadra, Brad Bruggeman, Gail Schile, Margaret Conwell, Ernest Gerling, Mac Fraser, Karen Tomsik and Rosemary Wright.

Technical arrangements: Jim Pimble, Terry Barber, Jim Larson, Frances Driver, Penny Mather and Linda Lenington.

Ticket distribution and collection: Barbara Johnstone, Jim Pimble, Ed Lipski, Judy Rogers, Colleen Henry, Autumn Holtz, Sharon Flynn, Janice Jordan, Peggy Vandekop, Gail Anderson, Frank Todd and Mary Ellen Cowhey.

Placement Bureau Job Interviews

Students interested in arranging appointment with any of these representatives should contact the Placement Bureau prior to the interview date.

The Northern Pacific Railway Co., St. Paul, Minn., will be seeking management trainees in interviews at the Placement Bureau, Feb. 5. Accounting and finance majors are needed.

On Feb. 6, the California Packing Corp. of San Francisco, Calif., will be interviewing business administration, accounting and finance majors for management trainees.

The U.S. Geological Survey, western region, will be interviewing chemistry and geology majors on Feb. 7.

The Missoula division of the U.S. Forest Service will be interviewing students with backgrounds in accounting, business and wildlife management on Feb. 8.

The Bank of America, San Francisco, Calif., will be interviewing banking and finance majors on Feb. 6.

Van Horn to Talk On Communism

Robert L. Van Horn, dean of the School of Pharmacy, will discuss "Communism in the Classroom," at the Student Education Association meeting tonight. The meeting will begin at 7:30 in Room 211 of the Business Administration building.

For the past two years during July, Dean Van Horn has attended the National Defense Seminars of the General Staff College, Washington, D.C. He was first a student, then a moderator.

Nota Bene

Sentinel editor applicants must submit their applications by 4 p.m. today to the Lodge desk. An applicant must have attended MSU for two quarters, not including this quarter.

Venture business manager applicants will be interviewed at 5 p.m. in Committee Room 3.
